

THE POWER OF THE WISCONSIN NATIVE VOTE

INDIGENOUS FUTURES SURVEY

With a population of nearly 50,000 Native peoples, and narrow victories for presidential candidates in 2016 and 2020, Wisconsin's Native vote turnout could help determine the 2024 election.

U.S. Census Bureau,
American Community
Survey (2021)

U.S. Census Bureau, 2020 Current Population Survey Voting and Registration Supplement. Percentage of citizens, 18+, who voted in the 2020

National Survey Shows What Wisconsin Native Voters Care About Most

The Indigenous Futures Survey is the largest nationally representative survey led by Native peoples, for Native peoples. 2023 survey responses from Native peoples living in Wisconsin identified the following priorities that will influence how they vote in 2024.

Economy and cost of living

Unemployment, inflation, and chronic underfunding of government services are widening the economic and racial disparities for Tribal and urban Native communities.

Environmental protection and climate change

Increasing winter temperatures, precipitation, and less ice cover on lakes are straining the state's infrastructure and natural resources, disproportionately impacting Native peoples. Urgent government action is needed to mitigate these effects and provide Tribes with the resources to repair damaged lands and waters.

Tribal sovereignty and self-determination

Threats to treaty rights, both legal and inherent, are increasing. Recent attempts to overturn the Indian Child Welfare Act (ICWA) and desecrate sacred places highlight the need to elect policymakers who will honor Tribal sovereignty and self-determination.

Our Vote Is Our Power

When Natives show up to the polls,
Indian Country is seen and heard.
Ensure you're registered to vote, and encourage your family, community, and Tribe to mobilize our collective power.

➤ Register to vote /
check your registration.

➤ Learn more about Wisconsin's key dates, regulations, and
polling locations.

➤ Find out where candidates stand on the issues important to you and your community.

Wisconsin's Deadline for Voter Registration

Online or by mail:
October 16, 2024.
In person:
November 5, 2024.

Learn more at NativesVote.com